

WOULD DROWN TRAVELERS IN THEIR BUNKS IF POSSIBLE

German Submarine Attempts To Torpedo Another Passenger Ship, But Aim Is Poor With Tube and Gun—Ship Escapes

MURDEROUS DESIRE ADDS TO TENSION

Washington Believes That Last Straw Has Come and Attack Without Warning On the Orduña Shows German Intentions

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) NEW YORK, July 18.—Wholly without warning and while the majority of her passengers were in their bunks, asleep, the British steamer Orduña, bound from Liverpool to New York, was attacked by a German submarine on the early morning of July 9. The Orduña reached port yesterday and brought the news of the attack. The ship carried two hundred and twenty-seven passengers, including twenty-one Americans.

Captain Taylor states that the attack came without the slightest warning, his ship being at the time sixteen hours out from Liverpool. The torpedo speeding towards the ship, its wake showing on the surface, was the first indication afforded those on the ship that a hostile submarine was in the vicinity. The torpedo missed its mark, passing some thirty feet behind the stern.

SHELED THE STEAMER
Hurried orders for all possible speed were sent to the engine room and the Orduña was making good time when the submarine broke to the surface behind her, opening fire with her deck gun. None of the shells struck and the ship escaped, but it was hours before the startled passengers could be reassured. They remained on deck during the greater part of the day, wearing life belts, while the small boats were swung out and held ready to launch.

In all, seven shots were fired at the steamer, the shells coming dangerously near in some cases. ADDS TO TENSION
The report of Captain Taylor, fully corroborated by the passengers, has created grave concern and it is generally believed that the effect of this new attack upon an unarmed passenger ship will go far towards breaking off further diplomatic negotiations between Washington and Berlin.

Word from Washington last night stated that the officials there were agreed that if the official investigation proves the first reports correct the incident will have a very decided effect upon the American reply to the second German note, which is to be considered at a cabinet meeting on Tuesday.

WILL INVESTIGATE
As soon as a formal complaint against the unjustified attack upon the Orduña is made, the state department will make a formal investigation. The report made by Captain Taylor is supported by so many witnesses that its truth is not questioned, and it is certain that the affair will add another grave element to the already strained relations between this country and Germany.

It is expected that it will undoubtedly affect the views of the President and the cabinet members in their formulation of the next step to be taken by the United States in its policy towards the carrying on of the submarine warfare against passenger ships.

WOMEN WOULD SERVE EMPIRE IN ANY CAPACITIES

'Victory Is Certain,' Lloyd George Tells Them, Thanking Them for Example

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, July 18.—It is a crime that the men who should be at the front fighting for the Empire are being kept at home in positions that women can fill," declared Mrs. Pankhurst, who led a delegation of women to interview David Lloyd George, the minister of munitions, yesterday, to offer the services of the women who desired to enlist in the war.

Later, with Lloyd George and Mrs. Pankhurst on the same platform, a great parade of women desirous of enlisting was reviewed. There were five thousand women in the line which filed past the two leaders, many of them carrying banners announcing their desire to be of whatever service to the empire they could, in any capacities.

Victory Is Certain
The minister of munitions made a stirring address to the women, thanking them for their manifestations of loyalty and the example they were setting to the men of the nation, an example that should produce far reaching results.

"The government will utilize the services of everyone who will help in winning the victory for Great Britain," he said. "Victory ultimately will come for Britain," he declared, "and the more who come forward now the sooner that victory will come, but sooner or later, victory is a certainty."

Miners Defy Government
Any hopes that might have been entertained that the coal strike in Wales would be over this week have been dissipated by the actions of the strikers, who have stated that they purpose to fight for their rights to a finish. The miners now insist upon the cancellation of the proclamation to bring them under the "No Strike Act," declaring that they will not entertain any suggestion of returning to work so long as the government threatens to order the police to force them back into the pits.

The government representatives expect to resume their conferences with the representatives of the strikers on Monday, but have small hopes of being able to effect any early compromise.

of Germany in her protestations of friendship towards the United States is evident among the officials, the attack upon the Nebraska, in broad daylight, at a time when her distinguishing marks were plain to be seen, and now the attack by daylight upon the Orduña, easily distinguishable as a passenger carrying ship, giving apparent proof to the contention that Germany has no desire to meet the humanitarian demands of the United States.

BELIES BERNSTORFF'S WORDS

It had been hopefully expected that Germany would moderate her submarine warfare, in deference to the American demands, pending the effort of her diplomats to secure an amicable understanding with this country.

This belief in a satisfactory outcome was even expressed to Secretary of State Lansing by the German ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, on Friday.

KILLING IS MAIN OBJECT OF ATTACKS

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, July 17.—A court of inquiry which has been investigating the Lusitania sinking today found that "torpedoes fired by a German submarine" sank the big liner. In the opinion of the court the act was not merely with the intention of sinking the ship, but also with the intention of destroying the lives of the passengers. No blame is attached to the captain or the owners of the liner by the court findings.

SOCIALISTS OF GERMANY PROTEST

Say Food Harpies Are Squeezing The Poor—Necessities of Life Too Dear

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) BERLIN, July 18.—The executive committee of the National Socialist party, and the executive committee of the federation of Socialist labor unions, united yesterday in the presentation to the minister of the interior of a protest against allowing the recent increase in the maximum price of grains, as a result of which many of the poorer residents of Germany are suffering through inability to purchase sufficient food.

The federation of labor unions published a manifesto, in which it was stated that the federation desired to go on record as being emphatically "against the food harpies" who are taking advantage of the situation created through the war to exploit the poor of what savings they may have left.

This manifesto says that the prices being asked for the necessities of life are pressing the poorer classes. Many, it says, has doubled in price under no circumstances.

The Socialists demand that the government step in and regulate the prices that may be charged on all commodities, fixing the maximum price at figures that will protect the people and allow them to live.

REMINGTON COMPANY FACING A STRIKE

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) BRIDGEPORT, Connecticut, July 18.—The machinists employed in the factories of the Remington Arms Company will go out on strike tomorrow, unless their demands for increased pay is met today by the management.

The pattern makers in the works of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, who have demanded an increased wage of three cents an hour, struck yesterday, their demand being refused.

Both concerns are filling large orders for the British and French governments and the strikes may delay the delivery of the munitions. That such is the prime object of the agitators who have fomented the trouble is the belief of many.

Starvation Faces Natives of Rota Island Near Guam

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) WASHINGTON, July 18.—The navy department has received word from Guam that extreme danger exists of starvation among the natives of the island of Rota, one of the Ladrones group, just north of Guam.

The island has been visited by a series of hurricanes, which destroyed much of the coconut and other tree crops, while a long continued drought has killed off the greater part of the root crops, leaving the inhabitants of the island with practically no food supply. It is probable that the navy department will authorize a relief expedition, to carry food to the Rota natives.

NO NEWS FROM BIG BATTLEFIELDS

All Capitals Silent Regarding Outcome of Fierce Fray in North Poland

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, July 18.—No news was received from any source last night as to the outcome of the fierce fighting known to be in progress north of Warsaw and in the German advance against Riga. It is known that von Hindenburg and von Mackensen have the bulk of the German strength on the eastern front cooperating in this grand assault upon the Warsaw line.

GREATEST OFFENSIVE YET

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, July 17.—With all of Germany's smashing attacks against the Russians in the eastern war arena, the greatest is yet to come. A new German offensive movement with Riga as its objective, and on the largest scale ever attempted in the east, is revealed in the latest statements from Berlin and Petrograd.

Observers in London consider that the huge enveloping movement is an attempt to eliminate Russia completely as a factor in the war.

The Russians are now only eighty miles from Riga and sanguinary battles are raging along the entire front.

Russians Holding Firm
Russian official reports during the last two days make the claim that the Russian lines are holding well north of Warsaw, in spite of the heavy battering of the German attacks. "Important forces" west of Orzye are said to have been repulsed by the Russian armies with heavy losses.

It is admitted that the Russians have withdrawn and taken up new defensive positions on a line at Narva. A continuance of the German advance in the Courland section is admitted.

Unofficial reports from Geneva, Switzerland, report that the Austrian forces which crossed the Dniester and attempted to pursue the Russians, have been routed and are being forced to retreat in their turn.

HONOLULU GIRLS IN A SHIPWRECK

Launch Vera Went Ashore In Hilo Bay In Darkness and Waves Made Things Lively

(Mail Special to The Advertiser.) HILO, July 15.—Wrecked amidst high waves and in impenetrable darkness, near the beach of Hilo bay between Waianae and the Volcano Stables, a fishing party of seven persons—two Honolulu girls and five Hilo men—had an exciting, if not dangerous escape from drowning last Wednesday evening about eight-thirty o'clock.

Those in the party were E. O. McGuffee, S. E. Murphy, George Sims, Jack Easton and L. F. Sternman of Hilo, and Miss Henrietta Smith and Miss Clara Lora of Honolulu.

The party started from the Waianae landing in the steam launch Vera to spend the evening fishing at Reed's bay. Less than half an hour later the launch was aground, a distance of almost a block from shore, with immense breakers washing over it, while every wave threatened to capsize the boat and pin one or more beneath. Danger to the party was greatly increased by the dense darkness in which it was impossible to act with any definiteness.

Thrown Out By Stop
As the launch ran aground, George Sims was catapulted by the shock of the sudden stop from his seat into the water. His disappearance over the side of the boat added to the excitement as the party were unable to see where he was carried by the waves and no one knew whether he could swim. Sims' unexpected dive, however, relieved the accident of some of its stress, for as he came up from the water he found that he could touch bottom.

Perceiving the danger of the launch capsizing, Sims shouted that he was safe, and grasped the side of the launch in an endeavor to hold it on an even keel. In a moment the other men in the party were in the water and also doing all possible to keep the boat from overturning. The young ladies then clambered into the water and were taken ashore by Murphy.

Girls Were Brave
In relating the incidents of the accident the men were highly complimentary of the coolness and courage shown by the two young ladies when the danger was greatest.

"When told to climb out of the launch they did so without hesitation. If they had been excited or frightened, one cannot tell what might have been the toll of the wreck," one declared.

Exciting, Not Dangerous, Say Girls
"It was pretty dark, the waves were high, and the launch rolled around like it might turn over, but there wasn't really any danger, it was only exciting," exclaimed Miss Low.

"We weren't afraid because there was nothing to be afraid of. I don't see why the men say we were brave."

Party's Plight Precarious
Despite the modesty of the young ladies, the male members of the party declared that before they knew they were in comparatively shallow water, and were unable to tell exactly where the boat had grounded, that the position of the party was most precarious.

"Even then there was danger of the boat overturning and entangling someone beneath it, in the dark," they explained.

KELSEY WRITE-UP STIRS THE HILOITES

Press Divides Over Question Whether Carlsmith Did the Right Thing Or Not

Hilo is "all hot up" over the pen picture drawn of H. E. Kelsey by Carl Carlsmith, a description of the well known character which brought him in to the world's limelight and caused him to be hailed as "a world example of charitable goodness." The attorney's pen picture was painted with too much background to suit Mr. Kelsey's Hilo friends, it appears.

The Hilo papers have taken sides in the matter, the Tribune republishing the article from The Advertiser, with editorial comment, and the Herald dashing to Mr. Kelsey, with its own idea on the subject and an interview with Mr. Carlsmith to back it up.

'Speaker of Pieces'
Says the Tribune: "Seldom do any of us arrive at such heights that our friends are called to pen a graphic sketch of our faults and virtues during our life to present to a world in which we are unknown. Such has fallen to the lot of Henry E. Kelsey, 'the speaker of pieces,' declared by that great man of letters, Hansotau, to be 'a pure and heroic soul.'"

"How many of us would care to win praise from high quarters, if the price we must pay was to have unerring pictures of our peculiarities—even if with the same sympathetic understanding of all the underlying motives which prompted our ever best action—as is done by attorney Carlsmith in his touching pen picture of Kelsey? But it is the noble character who never count cost of self when following some ideal that stand out brightest upon the pages of the world's history. Such a character is our fellow townsman."

"Some readers may see a slight irony in the light lines that give the attorney's pen picture contrast from the heave markings of praise; but others will perceive that it is inspired and imbued with a great kindness, and drawn from a perspective which always included and mocked, however desecrating may have been the fog of eccentricities in which the subject seemed to be centered, when viewed from afar."

'Literary Outrage'
The Herald has quite a different idea, saying:

"If ever there was a 'literary' outrage committed upon an unoffending, cool-headed old man, it was effusion which is credited to Attorney Carlsmith of Hilo, and which holds up to ridicule and mockery that well known citizen, H. E. Kelsey. The Carlsmith story first appeared in the New York Times and, in part, was reprinted in the Advertiser of July 7. It is hardly conceivable that such an article could be written for publication or for even private perusal."

FOUR WORLD RECORDS BROKEN YESTERDAY

Exciting Finish To Exposition Contests, With Hawaii a Close-up Second—Frances Cowells Is Girl Champion of the World

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—The Illinois Athletic Club of Chicago came strong in the closing of the A. A. U. championships at Sutro Baths last night and by winning the 200 yards breast stroke, 150 yards back stroke and relay race scored enough points to win the meet.

Hawaii lost the meet by a narrow margin, but the winners had to smash world's records to score their victories. During the second day of the meet, four world's records were broken, one by Kahanamoku, while a new American record was set for the 220 yards women's race.

Kahanamoku a Star
Duke Kahanamoku of Hawaii was again a star in the record breaking lowering the time in the 100-yard dash in a tank, with one turn, from 0:54 4/5 to 0:54 2/5. Arthur Rathel of the Illinois Athletic Club was second.

Michael McDermott, swimming under the colors of the Illinois Athletic Club finished first in the 300 yards breast stroke establishing a world's record for the distance. E. J. Heraty of the Reading, Pennsylvania, was second and Duke Kahanamoku, third.

Distance Race To Langers
Ludy Langers of the Los Angeles Athletic Club defeated Perry McGillivray of the Illinois Athletic Club and Joseph Wheatley of the New York Athletic Club in the 500-yard swim, covering the distance in 6:13 4/5.

Smashed All Records
Following one of the greatest tests of speed ever witnessed in a tank, the Illinois Athletic Club relay team, comprising William Vosberg, Perry McGillivray, Arthur Rathel and Harry Heber, defeated the Hawaii team, comprising George Cunha, Clarence Lane, Harold Kruger and Duke Kahanamoku.

To accomplish this feat, the Illinois aggregation, which is a world's champion combination, was forced to the limit and in a gruelling finish, the last man of the Illinois team defeated the final wimmer of the Hawaii team in the world's record breaking time of 2:43 1/5. The previous record of 2:44 3/5 was also held by the Illinois team.

In the 150-yard back stroke, Harry Heber, holder of the world's record for the distance, further reduced the mark by negotiating the distance in 1:53 3/5.

Miss Cowells a Champion
Miss Frances Cowells, of San Francisco became the national women's champion in the 220-yard dash by covering the distance in 3:20. The world's record for a tank is held by Miss Daisy Turwin of London, England, with a record of 3:08 4/5. Fanny Duck of Australia holds the open water world's championship with a record of 2:59.
